The Passive Voice in English and Russian
Renard Press Ltd

The distinctive feature of voice in English and Russian is a property confined to transitive verbs. In a sentence which is unmarked for the feature of voice, the grammatical subject is the actor and the object is the recipient of the action. In the sentence which is marked passive in voice, the grammatical object is still the recipient of the action, and the agent is still the instigator, but certain overt changes have occurred in the grammatical forms serving as passive markers in the verb phrase. The agent may or may not be mentioned, and the latter is more preferable, since the chief function of using a passive construction seems to be to avoid the necessity of mentioning the agent. Although the best method for testing the feature of voice is retransformation of passive sentences—thus producing agnate pairs, this method does not account for their actual occurrence. By taking unpaired types selecting both animates and of sentences (e.g., inanimates as subjects and objects) and transforming or retransforming them, it was found that passive sentences possess certain constraints, e.g., animate subjects are more suitable agents of action, and a passive construction is preferable when both subject and object are inanimate., The study has, however, been concentrated on grammatically acceptable passive constructions in both languages, and not on the frequency of their usage. For this purpose, string models were set up for each language, and the following correspondences were established for all tenses, aspects, and moods which may be used in passive constructions.

More than fifty specialists have contributed to this new edition of volume 1 of The Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature. The design of the original work has established itself so firmly as a workable solution to the immense problems of analysis, articulation and coordination that it has been retained in all its essentials for the new edition. The task of the new contributors has been to revise and integrate the lists of 1940 and 1957, to add materials of the following decade, to correct and refine the bibliographical details already available, and to re-shape the whole according to a new series of conventions devised to give greater clarity and consistency to the entries.

The New Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature Tirso Jose Alecoy

George Orwell set out 'to make political writing into an art', and to a wide extent this aim shaped the future of English literature - his descriptions of authoritarian regimes helped to form a new vocabulary that is fundamental to understanding totalitarianism. While 1984 and Animal Farm are amongst the most popular classic novels in the English language, this new series of Orwell's essays seeks to bring a wider selection of his writing on politics and literature to a new readership. In Politics and the English Language, the second in the Orwell's Essays series, Orwell takes aim at the language used in politics, which, he says, 'is designed to make lies sound truthful and murder respectable, and to give an appearance of solidity to pure wind'. In an age where the language used in politics is constantly under the microscope, Politics and the English Language is just as relevant today, and gives the reader a vital understanding of the tactics at play. The form of a verb in which the subject is the person or thing that performs the action. Example: They finished the work.

[subject -- "they", verb -- "finished", object -- "work"] In this sentence, the subject (they) acts on the object (work).

Other Examples: The teacher praises him. She posted the letter. I buy new books. We will celebrate his birthday.

PASSIVE VOICE - Definition The form of a verb in which the subject is affected by the action of the verb. Important Note -- The object of the active voice becomes the subject in the passive voice.

Changing Active Voice Into Passive Voice

Rule 1: Move the object of the active voice into the position of the subject (front of the sentence) in the passive voice. And move the subject of the active voice into the position of the object in the passive voice. Rule 2: Passive voice needs a helping verb to express the action. Put the helping verb in the same tense as the original active sentence. The main verb of the active voice is always changed into past participle (third form of the verb) in different ways. Rule 3: Place the active sentence's subject into a phrase beginning with the preposition 'by'. Rule 4: If the object in an active voice sentence is a pronoun (me, us, you, him, her, they, it), it changes in passive voice sentence as follows: me -- I; us -- we; you -- you; him -- he; her -- she; them -- they; it -- it Rule 5: Subject- Verb

Agreement Make the first verb agree with the new subject in passive voice.

Rule 6: When there are two objects (direct object and indirect object), only one object is interchanged. The second object remains unchanged. Following Tenses Cannot Be Changed Into Passive Voice: 1. Present Perfect Continuous Tense 2. Past Perfect Continuous Tense 3. Future Continuous Tense 4. Future Perfect Continuous Tense
