"She looked at him as a friend until she realised she loved him." Kas was a busy social worker from London, with no time for love or relationships. Thanks to Owen, her casual lover, she believed that weekend hookups would be enough, and love is just an overrated myth. But meeting her online friend, Aiden, for the first time changed everything. He understood her, believed in her, and supported her the way nobody ever did. He helped her overcome her struggles with emotions. But will they break the "just friends" façade and let love win? And which broken promises will Kas forgive? "I will never fall in love with you." "I will always be here with you, no matter what. I won't leave." "I will be strong, I promise." This book contains descriptive panic attacks, anxiety, mentions of child abuse, strong language, drugs and mature explicit content recommended for readers 18+

Finally, he admitted defeat and accepted the truth as he saw it. Judith Reid was a snob, no different from all those other women he'd met through his wealthy college roommate. In fact, she was worse because she had him believing in love at first sight, when in reality, she seduced him and left him wanting. He swore to even the score no matter how long it took. Judith, a commercial interior designer, is lured into his grasp with the prospect of remodeling an office-building Dev knows holds significance for her. However, his plans backfire, and from the moment he sees Judith again, he's captivated, and struggles against another empty seduction.
