If a hungry little traveler shows up at your house, you might want to give him a cookie. If you give him a cookie, he's going to ask for a glass of milk. He'll want to look in a mirror to make sure he doesn't have a milk mustache, and then he'll ask for a pair of scissors to give himself a trim.... The consequences of giving a cookie to this energetic mouse run the young host ragged, but young readers will come away smiling at the antics that tumble like dominoes through the pages of this delightful picture book.

Handwriting is a necessary skill for children that will serve them throughout their lives, which is why it is so important. Handwriting has the following benefits: 1. Handwriting facilitates children's cognitive development. (When characters are written on paper with a pen or pencil, the brain is focused on one thing, which helps fix the written material in memory.) 2. Handwriting - essential in children's psychomotor development. (When children learn to write by hand, they learn to coordinate their arm, hand, and finger muscles to make different movements, develop fine control of movements and dexterity.) 3. Handwriting makes reading easier. 4. Handwriting helps develop language. Help your child to have a correct writing posture from the very beginning! Here are some tips: 1. Colours attract the attention of young children, so to encourage writing, choose colorful notebooks and pens. 2. Try to include writing in your child's activities, e.g. if they are drawing, ask them to write a short description of the drawing. 3. Posture is very important when your child is writing, so make sure they have the correct posture: head should be up and not bent, back should be straight, opposing hand resting on the table, left hand relaxed, shoulder relaxed and wrist supported but not forced; opposing hand should be used to hold the notebook/paper so that the writing hand is free to handle the pen. 4. As for the writing instrument, it should be held at an angle of 60 degrees to the sheet of paper, with 3 fingers, 2-3 cm away from the base, without applying pressure to the writing instrument. This book contains 123 pages of which 120 are blank pages for your little one to learn the art of handwriting. It is perfect for preschoolers and toddlers to learn how to shape characters and alphabets. Buy your child this blank page workbook now to help them create a bright future early!
