Policlinico. Sezione pratica Gangemi Editore spa
Relates the fate of the Jews in Palermo from 1938 (enactment of the Racial Laws) until 1943, based on 11 interviews carried out between 1996-98 with Jews and non-Jews in the city. The introduction (pp. vii-xxii) states that the inconsistencies in Mussolini's policy toward the Jews were a result of his opportunism rather than a consequence of his ideological convictions. Pp. 1-21 include the texts of the Racial Laws. Pp. 23-121 deal with their application in Palermo and with the reactions of the press. Jewish ownership of property was restricted, some properties were confiscated, and restrictions were imposed on daily life (e.g. prohibition to own a radio or a car, or to appear in the telephone book). Some of the Jews were interned in concentration camps. The press (since 1926 under state control) acted as an instrument of fascist propaganda. Pp. 93-154 contain the interviews; pp. 155-219 present documents and photos.

Per la prima volta dall'inaugurazione del complesso scolastico del Tiburtino III si riparla dei padiglioni della Scuola all'Aperto, realizzati secondo un ideale di scuola innovativo, che prevedeva il costante contatto con la natura per i bimbi ed un richiamo letterario a dimensioni virgiliane, legate al grande parco che circondava gli edifici del 1939, che si snodavano lungo la via del Frantoio. Disponibile anche in cofanetto unitamente ai volumi: "Arte in cattedra ai mercati di Traiano" a cura di Andrea Bonavoglia, Luca Barreca, Simone Battiato, Francesco Calia e Alessandro Reale Segni di luce a cura di Daniela De Angelis

"The Catcher in the Rye," written by J.D. Salinger and published in 1951, is a classic American novel that explores the themes of adolescence, alienation, and identity through the eyes of its protagonist, Holden Caulfield. The novel is set in the 1950s and follows Holden, a 16-year-old who has just been expelled from his prep school, Pencey Prep. Disillusioned with the world around him, Holden decides to leave Pencey early and spend a few days alone in New York City before returning home. Over the course of these days, Holden interacts with various people, including old friends, a former teacher, and strangers, all the while grappling with his feelings of loneliness and dissatisfaction. Holden is deeply troubled by the "phoniness" of the adult world and is haunted by the death of his younger brother, Allie, which has left a lasting impact on him. He fantasizes about being "the catcher in the rye," a guardian who saves children from losing their innocence by catching them before they fall off a cliff into adulthood. The novel ends with Holden in a mental institution, where he is being treated for a nervous breakdown. He expresses some hope for the future, indicating a possible path to recovery..
Pathologica World Health Organization
"Every year between 250 000 and 500 000 people suffer a spinal cord injury, with road traffic crashes, falls and violence as the three leading causes. People with spinal cord injury are two to five times more likely to die prematurely. They also have lower rates of school enrollment and economic participation than people without such injuries. Spinal cord injury has costly consequences for the individual and society, but it is preventable, survivable and need not preclude good health and social inclusion. Ensuring an adequate medical and rehabilitation response, followed by supportive services and accessible environments, can help minimize the disruption to people with spinal cord injury and their families. The aims of International perspectives on spinal cord injury are to: ---assemble and summarize information on spinal cord injury, in particular the epidemiology, services, interventions and policies that are relevant, together with the lived experience of people with spinal cord injury; ---make recommendations for actions based on this evidence that are consistent with the aspirations for people with disabilities as expressed in the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

This coherent presentation of clinical judgement, caring practices and collaborative practice provides ideas and images that readers can draw upon in their interactions with others and in their interpretation of what nurses do. It includes many clear, colorful examples and describes the five stages of skill acquisition, the nature of clinical judgement and experiential learning and the seven major domains of nursing practice. The narrative method captures content and contextual issues that are often missed by formal models of nursing knowledge. The book uncovers the knowledge embedded in clinical nursing practice and provides the Dreyfus model of skill acquisition applied to nursing, an interpretive approach to identifying and describing clinical knowledge, nursing functions, effective management, research and clinical practice, career development and education, plus practical applications. For nurses and healthcare professionals.
