 Northern Irish poets have been notably reticent when addressing political issues in their work. In Sympathetic Ink, Shane Alcobia-Murphy traces that tendency through the works of Seamus Heaney, Paul Muldoon, and Medbh McGuckian. Using collections of the poets' papers made only recently available, Alcobia-Murphy focuses on the oblique, subtle strategies they apply to critique contemporary political issues. He employs the concept of sympathetic ink, or invisible ink, arguing that rather than avoiding politics, these poets have, via complex intertextual references and resonances, woven them deeply into the formal construction of their works. Acute and learned, Sympathetic Ink will serve as a perfect introduction to these crucial figures of Irish poetry.

Grania Quiz Whiz

Here is an extraordinary novel about real-life Irish chieftain Grace O Malley. From Morgan Llywelyn, bestselling author of Lion of Ireland and the Irish Century novels, comes the story of a magnificent, sixteenth-century heroine whose spirit and passion are the spirit and passion of Ireland itself. Grania (Gaelic for Grace) is no ordinary female. And she lives in extraordinary times. For even as Grania rises as her clan's unofficial head and breadwinner and learns to love a man, she enters a lifelong struggle against the English forces of Queen Elizabeth -- her nemesis and alter ego.

Elizabeth intends to destroy Grania's piracy and shipping empire--and so subjugate Ireland once and for all. But Grania, aided by Tigernan, her faithful (and secretly adoring) lieutenant, has no choice but to fight back. The story of her life is the story of Ireland's fight for solidarity and survival--but it's also the story of Grania's growing ability to love and be strong at the same time. Morgan Llywelyn has written a rich, historically accurate, and passionate novel of divided Ireland -- and of one brave woman who is Ireland herself. A Friends-to-Lovers, Good Girl + Bad Boy Romance They say he's the wrong guy...but he's the only one that can get the job done. Ava Ronen O'Shea—the hot, tattooed bad boy from Boston—is my life-long crush. And he's got a bucket list this summer with one thing on it—me in his bed for one night. As for me, I've got a problem, and Ronen might be just what I need to get over it. Besides, I figure the real thing can't match my fantasies. Crushes get crushed, after all. But this bad boy is too good at uncovering my secret—the dark truth I haven't told a soul. And he insists he can help me. Ronen Ava Sparks isn't the one who got away. She's the one who won't leave my damn head. Ava's beautiful inside and out, and she deserves better than a Boston boy from the wrong side of the tracks. I tell her what I want. But she needs me for something too. And I won't turn her down. I figure I can help her out and let her go at the same time. But I'm not leaving town until I chase that demon out of her head for good. What I don't plan on...is her chasing my demons away. That's when I know I'm totally screwed...

Alec returns to Kings Keep for second semester, only to find his group disintegrating at the hands of an apparent enemy within. More mysterious messages appear, together with a new face who may hold the solutions and a new roommate for Rod that sets Alec seething. Is Rod finally over his bizarre behaviour? Have his strange paintings finally been decoded? An orienteering activity and performing arts production bring out the best, and worst, in the students. Startling new revelations about the invisible world make it impossible for Alec to give up on the cosmic battle. In their final week, he and his friends learn that they will not return to Kings Keep for Year 8.

How forty years of research on thirty neurons in the stomach of a lobster has yielded valuable insights for the study of the human brain. Neuroscientist Eve Marder has spent forty years studying thirty neurons on the stomach of a lobster. Her focus on this tiny network of cells has yielded valuable insights into the much more complex workings of the human brain; she has become a leading voice in neuroscience. In Lessons from the Lobster, Charlotte Nassim describes Marder's work and its significance accessibly and engagingly, tracing the evolution of a supremely gifted scientist's ideas. From the lobster's digestion to human thought is very big leap indeed. Our brains selectively recruit networks from about ninety billion available neurons; the connections are extremely complex. Nevertheless, as Nassim explains, Marder's study of a microscopic knot of stomatogastric neurons in lobsters and crabs, a small network with a countable number of neurons, has laid vital foundations for current brain research projects. Marder's approach is as intuitive as it is analytic, but always firmly anchored to data. Every scrap of information is a pointer for Marder; her discoveries depend on her own creative thinking as much as her laboratory's findings. Nassim describes Marder's important findings on neuromodulation, the secrets of neuronal networks, and homeostasis. Her recognition of the importance of animal-to-animal variability has influenced research methods everywhere. Marder has run her laboratory at Brandeis University since 1978. She was President of the Society for Neuroscience in 2008 and she is the recipient of numerous awards, including the 2016 Kavli Award in Neuroscience and the 2013 Gruber Prize in Neuroscience. Research that reaches the headlines often depends on technical fireworks, and especially on spectacular images. Marder's work seldom fits that pattern, but this book demonstrates that a brilliant scientist working carefully and thoughtfully can produce groundbreaking results.
