Ivan Turgenev (1818-1883) was one the best-known Russian novelists of the 19th century. Among his books, "Fathers and Sons" (1862) stands out as a masterpiece. Turgenev's shorter fiction was equally popular. Written in the late 1870s and early 1880s, his "Poems in Prose" are regarded as a classical example of what is now known as flash fiction. The translation has been carefully edited, and the almost always omitted story, "Threshold", which is regarded as one of Turgenev's best, reinstated to its rightful place.

La bella y la bestia constituye un cierre magnífico para la obra cuentística de Clarice. Conformado por seis cuentos escritos cuando la autora no contaba con más de veinte años y por otros dos redactados en su último año de vida, lo primero que sorprende de este volumen es su homogeneidad y ensamblaje armonioso. El lector se siente inclinado hacia cierta incredulidad malsana porque cuesta creer que, siendo tan joven, Clarice hubiera podido expresar con tanta contundencia temas y preocupaciones que la acompañarían hasta el final de su vida. Este libro exhibe, en los cuentos de juventud y de vejez, el control al que se quiere someter a la bestia en un mundo gobernado por la destrucción, o peor, por el placer de la destrucción y por el sinsentido del dolor.
