Excerpt from How to Conduct a Public Meeting: A Few Simple Rules of Correct Procedure at Meetings of an Organized Local, or Any Public Meeting, for the Guidance of Presiding Officers and Members First. The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting. This is. Of course, assuming that the meeting has to do with a body which meets at regular intervals. The members present should listen attentively to the minutes. Those who were present at the previous meeting should be in a position to check the Secretary's Report and this should be done after the minutes are read. As soon as the minutes we read, the presiding officer should ask if there are any corrections or additions to be made in the minutes. If anyone has a correction to make, they should be ready and make it as briefly as possible. If this correction is sustained by the majority of those present at the previous meeting, the minutes should at once be amended in this respect. When these corrections have been made, it is in order for anyone to move the adoption of the minutes as read if there are no corrections. Or as corrected if there have been corrections made. The motion to adopt the minutes should be seconded and put to the meeting, the yeas and nays called for, and when the minutes are duly passed, they should at once be signed by the presiding officer. If there is any business arising out of the minutes of the previous meeting. It should be taken up immediately following the adoption of the minutes, unless by a majority vote it is postponed to a later period of the meeting.  Robert's Rules of Order

Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised, commonly referred to as Robert's Rules of Order, RONR, or simply Robert's Rules, is the most widely used manual of parliamentary procedure in the United States. It governs the meetings of a diverse range of organizations-including church groups, county commissions, homeowners associations, nonprofit associations, professional societies, school boards, and trade unions-that have adopted it as their parliamentary authority. The manual was first published in 1876 by .US Army officer Henry Martyn Robert, who adapted the rules and practice of Congress to the needs of non-legislative societies. Ten subsequent editions have been published, including major revisions in 1915 and 1970. The copyright to Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised is owned by the Robert's Rules Association, which selects by contract an authorship team to continue the task of revising and updating the book. The 11th and current edition was published in 2011. In 2005, the Robert's Rules Association published an official concise guide, titled Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised In Brief. A second edition of the brief book was published in 2011.
