1.0 INTRODUCTION

Emerging countries are booming in spite of the financial crisis. These trends have been noted by comparisons with OECD countries:

From Old Public Administration to the New Public Service

Ideologically-driven reforms in the public sector are designed to put the stamp of the political party or politicians in charge on the government's services. For example, a government that believes in business would try to minimize public health care or would try to allow companies to control things such as wasteful spending, immigration and other areas of government.
